

FoodLogiQ appoints O'Leary as New CEO

10 January 2019 | News | By Sonali Wankhade

Over 25 years of experience in the technology industry, O'Leary has a proven track record of building and scaling highly efficient, effective and successful SaaS companies

FoodLogiQ, the leading SaaS provider of traceability, food safety and supply chain transparency solutions, announced that its Board of Directors has appointed Sean O'Leary as Chief Executive Officer effective January 7, 2019. Jamie Duke, who has served as interim CEO since August 2018 and Board member since 2014, will continue as a member of the Board and advisor to the company.

With over 25 years of experience in the technology industry, O'Leary has a proven track record of building and scaling highly efficient, effective and successful SaaS companies. Prior to his most recent role as CEO of Atlanta-based Synthio, O'Leary served as President and CEO of KnowledgeTree Inc., a leading SaaS company in the Sales Enablement space providing innovative content management software to global enterprises via their industry-leading platform. KnowledgeTree was acquired by Savo Group in 2017.

Prior to KnowledgeTree, O'Leary served as President and CEO of Strikelron, a cloud-based Data Quality platform which was acquired by Informatica in 2014. O'Leary has also held senior executive-level positions at Motorola, Good Technology and Cisco Systems.

FoodLogiQ's reach extends across the entire supply chain to include food manufacturers such as Tyson Foods, Hain-Celestial and Smithfield Foods, food retailers including Whole Foods Market, as well as hundreds of growers, co-packers and produce marketers. FoodLogiQ was also recognized the last two years in a row by Forbes Magazine as being one of the top 25 most innovative AgTech startups.