NEWS | ALLIED INDUSTRY

Foodpanda introduces a dedicated tech centre

Foodpanda has recently announced the launch of its dedicated technology centre in Bengaluru, aimed to strengthen the technology infrastructure, product capabilities and end user experience for the company.

By Guest | March 16, 2018

foodpanda-introduces-a-dedicated-tech-centre

> WordPress post #7154

Foodpanda has recently announced the launch of its dedicated technology centre in Bengaluru, aimed to strengthen the technology infrastructure, product capabilities and end user experience for the company.

A blueprint has been drawn to hire about 100 team members with strong tech background in a span of six to nine months.

The tech centre, which would be fully operational in a couple of weeks, would be headed by Nitin Gupta, who was recently appointed as the Head of Engineering.

The tech centre would extensively work on re-imagining the product, integrate functions and introduce specialised domains of machine learning and data sciences.

The centre will also be used for aggressive R&D functions in the future while leveraging best practises from around the world.

Read online: https://nuffoodsspectrum.in/news/30/12280/foodpanda-introduces-a-dedicated-tech-centre.html
© 2026 NUFFOODS Spectrum. All rights reserved.