A multitasking oil offering benefits across personal care, beauty & wellness

Speaking Herbs, an organic wellness brand focusing on botanical products across personal care, beauty wellness and home care verticals, has recently launched a Cold-pressed Black Seed oil, all made to be 100 per cent free from any chemical additives including mineral oil, palm oil, or any artificial colours and fragrance.

New Delhi-based Speaking Herbs is taking a completely opposite approach by launching Black Seed oil or the Kalonji oil, as it is called in India, a 100 per cent natural botanical personal care and wellness product.

It is a food-grade, cold-pressed, extra virgin oil made from non-GMO seeds of Nigella sativa, the scientific name for Kalonji. It has been a popular part of skincare, hair care and wellness remedies since ancient times, even being frequently used by people during the ages of early Egyptian civilization.

When consumed, Thymoquione, a constituent of Black Seed oil, serves multiple benefits to the body including, but not limited to, immunity enhancement, lung protection, and therapeutic effects on diabetes and even cancer.

Priced at Rs 1099 for 100ml, Black Seed oil is an excellent agent to boost immunity, and is rich in Thymoquinone and similar other antioxidants, and also rich in omega fatty acids. Black Seed oil helps maintain good digestive health and quality respiratory health by protecting the lungs from oxidative damage.
