This new agreement expands the relationship between Azelis and Bio-Botanica

Bio-Botanica, Inc., and Gillco Products LLC, an Azelis Company (Gillco), announced that they have entered into an agreement for Gillco to be the exclusive distributor of Bio-Botanica's botanical extract ingredients to U.S. companies in the food, beverage and dietary supplement industries.

The agreement brings together the oldest family-owned manufacturer of botanical extracts in the U.S. Bio-Botanica with Gillco, an innovative provider of food ingredients with a strong presence in the US food, beverage and dietary supplement industries. According to Bio-Botanica Chief Commercial Officer, Scott Florentino, "Bio-Botanica has been the best kept secret, providing high quality botanical extracts with dedicated customer support since 1972. In Gillco, we're happy to have found a partner who aligns with our values and has the power to introduce our great products to new customers." Shelley Becht, Managing Director of U.S. Food & Nutrition at Gillco states, "This new partnership with Bio-Botanica broadens our portfolio by adding a key and rapidly growing botanical extracts category, all while maintaining our dedication to delivering premium ingredients and exceptional customer service."

This new agreement expands the relationship between Azelis and Bio-Botanica, whose botanical extracts are exclusively distributed to the US cosmetic and personal care industries.
